

Community Reinvestment Act

Introduction

The Community Reinvestment Act (CRA) is intended to encourage depository institutions to help meet the credit needs of the communities in which they operate, including low- and moderate-income neighborhoods, consistent with safe and sound banking operations. It was enacted by the Congress in 1977 (12 USC 2901) and is implemented by Regulations 12 CFR Parts 25, 228, 345, and 563e. The Regulations were revised in 1995 and 2005.

The CRA requires that each insured depository institution's record in helping meet the credit needs of its entire community be evaluated periodically. That record is taken into account in considering an institution's application for deposit facilities, including mergers and acquisitions. CRA examinations are conducted by the federal agencies that are responsible for supervising depository institutions: the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (FRB), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

The Agencies, through the Federal Financial Institution Examination Council (FFIEC), have established interagency examination procedures for the following types of institutions: Small Institutions, Intermediate Small Institutions, Large Retail Institutions, Limited Purpose and Wholesale Institutions, and Institutions under Strategic Plans. The five different procedures correspond to the five alternative evaluation methods provided in the CRA regulations and are designed to respond to basic differences in institutions' structures and operations. All of the procedures reflect the intent of the regulation to establish performance-based CRA examinations that are complete and accurate but, to the maximum extent possible, mitigate the compliance burden for institutions. There are also instructions for writing public evaluations; the public evaluation template for each institution type is provided in Section XII.
